- Extreme hardship to qualifying relative (USC/LPR spouse, parent, son/daughter)
 - Hardship Factors
 - (1) USC/LPR family ties in U.S.; (2) QR's family ties outside of U.S.; (3) country conditions and QR's ties to country of relocation; (4) financial impact of departure; (5) significant health conditions.

212(h) Waiver – Heightened Standard

- Triggered by “violent or dangerous crimes.”
- Exceptional and Extremely Unusual Hardship (same as non-LPR COR)
 - Substantially beyond that which would ordinarily result from removal.
 - Primary factors include: age, health, length of residence in U.S., special educational needs, and family/community ties in U.S./abroad.
 - Secondary factors include: lower standard of living, diminished educational opportunities, poor economic conditions, linguistic barriers, and other adverse country conditions.
 - Note: Regulations do not specify hardship to whom. Ninth Circuit has clarified that hardship to both QR and applicant can be considered.

212(h) Waiver – Miscellaneous Thoughts

- Does not waive controlled substance offense apart from simple possession.
- Not available for those that have conspired, attempted, or committed murder or torture.
- Not available if applicant was previously “admitted” as LPR, if, since date of “admission,” applicant has:
 - Been convicted of aggravated felony; or
 - Not lawfully resided continuously in U.S. for 7 years preceding initiation of removal proceedings.

212(h) Waiver – Recurring Litigation

- Whether “admission” applies to an alien who acquired LPR status through AoS (within U.S.), or whether limitation only applies to those who were physically admitted into U.S. with an immigrant visa or after already having been granted LPR status.
 - Traditionally: Board held that LPRs convicted of aggravated felonies were not eligible for 212(h), no matter if they acquired status through AoS or admission after inspection at port of entry. See Matter of Koljenovic, 25 I&N Dec. 219, 225 (BIA 2010).
 - Currently: Board reversed course and followed the nine circuits that say AoS is not an “admission,” thus leaving affected applicants still eligible for 212(h). Matter of J-H-J, 26 I&N Dec. 563 (BIA 2015).

- Still must meet other 212(h) criteria.
